

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS AND GRATITUDE

In addition to the Idaho professionals of the Interagency Work Group who gave generously of their time and knowledge to develop the content of the Idaho Early Learning eGuidelines, there were a cadre of colleagues who contributed to the direction, form, and review of this eDocument. We wish to acknowledge their contributions.

The metaphor of a child was used many times for this project. Just like new parents, we knew this project would be a lot of work . . . but until we were well committed, we did not fully realize the full scope of what it would entail. Development of the Idaho Early Learning eGuidelines took us through a variety of stages; times of integration and disintegration. In addition, we faced difficult choices, challenges, uncertainties, and successes. The Work Group and the following people constitute the extended family or, if you will, “the proverbial village” that supported the development of the Idaho Early Learning eGuidelines.

Marsha Bracke, Facilitator, whose skills and clarity continue to move us through this challenging project. We would have been lost without her thoughtful help.

Gene Sue Weppner, Idaho Child Care Administrator, whose support was greatly appreciated as she provided access to the rich resources of the National Child Care Information Center (NCCIC).

Janice Fletcher, Ph.D., a member of the Interagency Work Group whose final professional edits for theoretical and content accuracy, consistent depth of content, and unified voice are invaluable. Janice helped us resolve many thorny issues.

Luis Calas, State Department of Education, designed the logo.

NATIONAL RESOURCES

Lori Connors-Tadros, Ph.D., NCCIC, brought the national perspective and understandings of other states’ experiences to get us started and give us perspective.

Joe Varano, NCCIC Region X TA, contributed articles and much needed information.

Billie Young, NCCIC Region X TA, a resource and reviewer who got us started on the evaluation component.

IDAHO CONTENT CONSULTANTS

Alice Anderson, College of Southern Idaho, contributed extra work on Domain 2.

Shelly Counsell, Ph.D., recreated Domain 4 after all the content vanished twice into a computer “black hole.”

Julie Wall, Ph.D., provided content for 6-8 year olds in Domain 1.

Susan Nelson, Infant Toddler Program – Region 2, developed the initial ELG applications for ITP.

IDAHO REVIEWERS

Mary Bostick, Ph.D., University of Idaho Center for Disabilities and Human Development, reviewed early special education content and sensitivity.

Julie Fodor, Ph.D., University of Idaho Center for Disabilities and Human Development, performed content review.

IDAHO HEAD START TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE TEAM

Melissa Bandy, Zero to Three, performed careful content edits of all Domains.

Sandra De Angelo, TA Team Leader, reviewed content and the team's work to create the crosswalk between the ELG and the Head Start Child Outcome Framework.

Anita Hoag, TA Team, brought focus on special education and the Head Start crosswalk.

NATIONAL REVIEWERS

Linda Gillespie, Zero to Three, Washington D.C., served as an advisor and thoughtful editor for the birth through three content, especially in Domains 1 and 3.

Oxana Golden, The After School Project, (NCCIC), performed content review for 6-8 year olds.

Debra Drake and Rudy Anderson, TAC-12, National Migrant and Seasonal Head Start Technical Assistance, provided helpful review of second language acquisition and cultural sensitivity.

Elaine Shea, Head Start American Indian Alaska Native Technical Assistance, provided review and comments for cultural sensitivity.

We also wish to express our deep gratitude to the many members of the Idaho early childhood community who encouraged, questioned, suggested, and supported the development of this foundational eDocument. You are the colleagues who will put this tool to work and help us develop supplemental materials, and make corrections and additions. Most importantly, we hope that you will use this document to support healthy, rich, and happy childhoods for young children!
