

Timeline of the 2013 Child NIS Published in 2014

The Child National Immunization Survey (Child NIS) is an annual survey of children aged 19 through 35 months living in the United States at the time of the interview. To assure the accuracy and precision of the vaccination coverage estimates, immunization data for surveyed children are also collected through a mail survey of their pediatricians, family physicians, and other health care providers. The parents and guardians of eligible children are asked during the telephone interview for consent to contact the children’s vaccination providers. Types of immunizations, dates of administration, and additional data about facility characteristics are requested from immunization providers that are identified during the telephone survey of households.
